OF NATIONAL WAR EFFORT

In this, a salient year
Of lives remolded
And courage tried,
The selfish aims, the empty existence
Were laid away
Until the dawn should break,
Glorious; a new harbinger
To fill our hearts with shining hope,
A strengthened trust,
A renaissance.

To this, the incarnate spirit
Of American liberty and foresight
Which shall endure, stable . . . free
Throughout the concurrence of events,
Flamelike in their inconstancy,
We, the youth of the future peace,
Devote our book.

FOREWARD

In this year, 1943, Pearl Harbor has become a memory in the minds of many. The first fire of indignation having died to an ember, our attention is turned to the serious duty of preparation and service safeguarding the future.

This year is ours to make as we will. It is a year of change, deep and solemn, gay and bright, hard and fast. We hope that this book may be more than the 1943 National. Our wish is that it may be treasured as a true and integrated product of this year.

With humility we present what we trust will forever remind us of brave hearts and true, of ultimate victory.

FACULTY ENCOURAGES

Students of National know their faculty as erudite teachers who are capable not only of presenting stiff exams, but also of provoking hearty laughs at "Hoot Nanny." Many of them also are striving to maintain morale during their free time, all unbeknown to us.

Headed by Dr. Johnson, the Faculty War Council sponsors the OCD films and has made war preparations through air raid drills. This group, composed of the Misses Staley, Kern, and Neumann, the Mesdames Hall Carter and Campbell, and Messrs. Griggs and Davis, is intensely interested in post-war reconstruction and salvage drives. As an advisory board to the Student War Council, they provide the impetus needed to win the war.

Our craftsman, Mr. "Bo," spends nights at U.S.O., O.C.D., and Salvation Army centers. He instructs civilians in the art of directing social recreation.

The Needs of Children in War Time is the timely topic for Miss Clara Belle Baker's lectures and articles. Besides devoting time to the "Dem" school children, she is the educational adviser of the Mary Crane League, which has presented the Sound Film Slide and manual, Defense for Children of Mothers Working for Victory.

This is fine preparation for something or other!

Vhen not rolling bandages, she's our Dean.

Meet our smiling, efficient supervisor.

He's made a hit with us this year.

He's a palmist, teacher, philosopher, craftsman.

INDIVIDUAL EXPRESSION

For the vacancies left by Miss Adams, who is on leave of absence to participate in work of the Office of Education, Washington, D. C., on the Expanded School Service program, Mrs. Rumry, and Mr. Wilson, National has found capable leaders in Miss Weller, Mr. Cousins, and Mr. Hardy. Army camps are royally entertained by our maestro's music. With Miss Mount and Mr. "Bo" as co-workers, Mr. Hardy is helping to build physical fitness.

Another newcomer to faculty personnel is Mrs. Clancy, freshman English professor. She has led investigations to reveal the effect of war on mental processes, social life, and current literature.

During Miss Westervelt's absence, Miss Risler has conducted College musical functions. Our new physician is Dr. Rice-Wray, who fulfills the former Dr. Kappes' duties, assisted by Nurse Walty.

Under the auspices of the Art Institute, Mrs. Taylor, Miss MacLennan, and Miss Gibson are members of the indoctrination classes. As volunteers, they are preparing to be on call to do craft work with convalescent soldiers and sailors at Great Lakes and station hospitals.

These are only a few of our instructors, all of whom are busily engaged in war activities and who realize the necessity for competent guidance of students maturing in a disrupted world.

THE

POPULOUS

SENIORS FACE A TROUBLED WORLD

READY FOR DUTY

Interviews with superintendents, meetings and conferences with the supervision department, and lectures by educational leaders spelled the anticipation of future teaching positions for the seniors.

Numbering nearly one hundred twenty-five, this class comprised one of the largest in the history of National. Although the Daisy Chain to honor the graduates was this year deemed unnecessary, precedent reigned at the Junior-Senior breakfast-deluxe. In lieu of the traditional chain, the sophs contributed a bond for the future recreation building.

Some feared they never would receive offers, but still hoped that the College would equal its one hundred per cent placement of last year. Unique in the number of war brides among the class members, still others filed application with the WAAC and the WAVE prior to commencement.

Culminating a year of intensive work in rolling bandages, knitting, and first aid, the seniors celebrated with the faculty-senior picnic. And then they were on their own!

JUNIORS ASSUME SENIOR'S RESPONSIBILITIES

JUNIORS IN ACTION

With so many new faces in their midst in September, the juniors had a gala welcoming party for everyone. They gorged themselves on hamburgers and cokes before a glowing fire in the Gwendolyn Armour room.

Into a huddle they went for plans to tackle their assembly program. They emerged with "Romance in Tune with the Times," which was a great success. Mrs. Whitaker stole the show!

Felt purses and hand-painted coasters were their wares at the Bazaar. Pocketing their money, they sponsored a "Rec" dance for the school. After sweeping the stag line off their feet, the juniors forgot them at Mrs. "Whit's" party at Lake Bluff.

Exams heralded the new year, but the class recovered at their Valentine party. Mr. Davis, new adviser, joined in the fun, leading the conga line.

With sorrow the juniors bid grads adieu at a breakfast in the spring.

SOPHOMORES ARE

NATIONALLY WAR-MINDED

SOPHOMORES SHOOT THE MARK

Betty Jane Dahlstrom
President

Following the tradition established by them as "green freshies" last year, the sophomores threw themselves, one and all, into the victory plans. Many of their members actively participated in work of the War Committee, in the bond drive, and in the book campaign.

They put their ingenuity to task in fashioning clever felt animal pins for the Bazaar. At the Darcy concert they dressed in formals to sell hot cider. Two bake sales, with goodies to tempt the palate, netted them a tidy sum, too.

One of the gayest functions of the year was the sophomore party in the Gwendolyn Armour room of the "Dem" school. Because of the snappy weather out-of-doors, a crackling fire was built in the fireplace. Around it the girls sang, played games, and ATE!

Perhaps the greatest thrill of the year for the class was their winning of the volleyball tournament.

FRESHMEN ENGENDER

THE PATRIOTIC SPIRIT

FRESHMEN JOIN THE RANKS

With entrance tests and orientation over, the vivacious freshmen lasses were ready and eager for some lighter diversions. A bit of genuine fun was the Big-Little Sister party at the fireplace, with the most ravenous appetites filled to satiety.

Once the excitement of elections was past, class officers swung into planning the year's activities.

In harmony with the Yuletide spirit, a Christmas party was given at the dorm, the holiday theme being carried out in decorations and refreshments. Each girl contributed toward securing a basket of food for a needy family.

A freshman-sophomore party in February convinced the two classes that closer social relationships should exist between them.

Having made a place for themselves at National, the freshmen have three years to look forward to, in which they hope ultimately to bequeath a record worthy of emulation by future "freshies."

WORK

National CLUBS

We learn to work together, to exchange ideas. Participation is our motto, appreciation our watchword. For the duration, activities are to be abandoned in favor of vital war work.

COLLEGE COUNCIL ACTS UPON PROBLEMS

Left to Right: M. Bixby; V. Rennicke; M. Miller; T. Lehmann.

Our College Council intelligently met issues that were placed before them. They faced war in relationship to National by starting the War Council and by suggesting the reduction of class dances to two all-school proms. The latter proposal was readily accepted by the student body. College Council complied with the requests of National girls by permitting the clubs to meet only when members found a meeting necessary. Other recommendations resulted in discontinuing exams for February graduates and calling a special assembly for announcement of scholarship awards.

Martha Bixby, as president of the Council and chairman of the Honor Commission, stimulated the interest of the Council. Vice-president, Virginia Rennicke, was Activity chairman and also sponsored the presentation of Christmas gifts to children at Hull House. Our secretary, Marilyn Miller, acted as chairman of the Citizenship Committee. Theo Lehman, treasurer, was chairman of the Red Cross drive and the Points and Revision Committee. Indeed, College Council deserves praise for its worthy contributions to National.

YWCA ENLISTS SERVICE

With their keynote this year, service, Y.W.C.A. strove toward an altruistic philosophy of life.

An all-school tea and a Big-Little Sister party elicited enthusiasm for joining Y.W. at their solemn, impressive recognition service.

A recreation night for service-men, book reviews by Mrs. Dawson, and a round table among three eminent religious leaders comprised the year's program.

ACE Prepares Students for Future

To inspire self-realization in future teachers and the democratic way of education as a guide in the profession are the aims encouraged by the Association for Childhood Education.

A talk on the utilization of waste materials, book reviews, a Red Cross knitting bee, and a mock interview of two seniors by the Highland Park superintendent of schools were paramount offerings. Culmination of the year was a senior luncheon given by the Chicago branch.

DRAMATIC CLUB Rivals Professional Companies

The D.A.'s are on the loose, those eccentric figures of the Dramatic Club! Under deft leadership, they presented a children's play, "Peter and Lotte," accomplished with finesse of previous seasons.

Again they tripped to the Panther Room to quell rumblings in the pits of their skeletons. It seems there were some flyers from Europe—anyway, it WAS their patriotic duty!

Dorm Board Represents Marienthal

Vigilance was their slogan as they checked on late permissions, mid-weeks, weekend jaunts, tardinesses, and campuses. Thankless though their task might be, the members of the Dormitory Board were ever on the job to see that justice was administered to all culprits. Stern countenances wreathed in smiles, trials waived for a respite, the genial board played hostesses to the faculty and students at a Christmas buffet.

An exciting party in the good old tradition celebrated All Hallow's Eve.

Prospective students of National were warmly welcomed and fêted at a tea in the spring.

Town Girls' Board Directs Commuters

What would we have done without the town girls who brought cookies for our food sales, a vase for a centerpiece, a car for a class excursion? A loyal group, they shall always form a necessary vertebra in the backbone of our school. T.G.A. offered, especially, opportunities to make new contacts and to enjoy living!

Outstanding events of the year were the traditional Christmas party, when ye olde English custom of serving the barbecued pig was observed, the bridge luncheon, and a weekend in the country.

Just to show that the Town Girls' Association works wholeheartedly and cooperatively—do you recall that they sponsored the most successful "open house?"

GRADUATE CLUB

"Ring out, oh voices, joyfully!"

It was a heavy blow to the choir when Miss Westervelt fell on the ice and broke her hip. This misfortune proved, however, to be an incentive towards polished performances under the direction of Miss Risler. In February the "five o'clock, Monday" practices began and later, in preparation for the Festival, those at four on Thursdays.

Much attention was focused this year on reviving a few of last year's selections and studying choral masterpieces of some of the world's greatest composers.

Long before Baccalaureate and Commencement the choir was at work, rehearsing to lend its dignified yet bright atmosphere to these memorable occasions.

GRADS Combine Home with School Life

Monthly the members of Graduate Club assembled in the Alumnae Room for informal discussions and social hours.

Club membership consisted of graduates of numerous colleges from all sections of the country. Represented were varied backgrounds. Some of the club's personnel have families in the making, which gives them first-hand experience and an unusual link between their chosen vocation and their homes.

Topics for consideration were widespread, due to the different environments. One of the highlights of the year was a dinner at the Cordon Club in February, arranged through the courtesy of President Edna Dean Baker.

TRAVEL CLUB learns about foreign customs and food.

With an intent toward encouraging friendly relations between the inter-racial groups which characterize our American "melting pot," Travel Club enthusiasts made a round of fascinating visits to the Dragon Festival, Old Heidelberg, Kungsholm, and Ricardo's. All agreed that by the end of the year they were connoisseurs of good food. Trudy Selz and President Benes' niece, Mrs. Vlcek, were interesting guest-speakers.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB exchanges ideas of foreign-born and American students.

International Club has strengthened the bond between Exchange students and National girls interculturally minded. In honor of Elina Crottogini, members entertained everyone at the dorm in the South American way. Spirited singing and racy music tingled in the blood of all. As a climax to the year's activities, the club enjoyed festivities at Chicago's International House.

"This is worth fighting for."

CHAFF HAS FREEDOM OF PRESS

In a dimly lit, cold cubbyhole, Chaff, National's gossip preacher and newsmonger, takes form. Through the muffled click of typewriters, Forstall, the editor, lets out a wild cry for the make-up sheet: "Who has it? And where is that lead story? Don't tell me we haven't a lead story?"—'til the tension is eased by the sudden apropos appearance of said story in the copy box. So runs every other Thursday evening, with Miss Kern and Mrs. Luft first semester, Mrs. Clancey second, drifting in and out to offer their opinions and aid.

Chaff's brainchild of the year, its pride and joy, was the sponsoring of a semi-formal dance held at the Edgewater Beach Hotel. 'Midst the swishing of skirts, Nationalites acted as hostesses to midshipmen from Abbott and Tower Halls. In spite of dampish weather, all had a super time.

THE COGS OF THE WHEELS

Within the well-organized, finished products which make up our building, activities, administration, programs, studies, and victory efforts are the unsung National heroines who keep the wheels running. These are the efficiency experts who remove the kinks before we see them.

Chosen by vote of the students, our committees function in the best interests of the entire school. Although we seldom hear their names mentioned, or even their work, they merit credit for laying the foundations.

Our Attendance Committee determines excused and unexcused absences.

The Activities Committee makes life worth living!

Experience in carrying responsibility is the realm of Points and Revisions Committee.

Lest we neglect our duties as citizens we receive cogent reminders.

We ourselves pledge to be honest and fair in all testing programs.

Here is a group ever enthusiastic in organizing sports and tournaments.

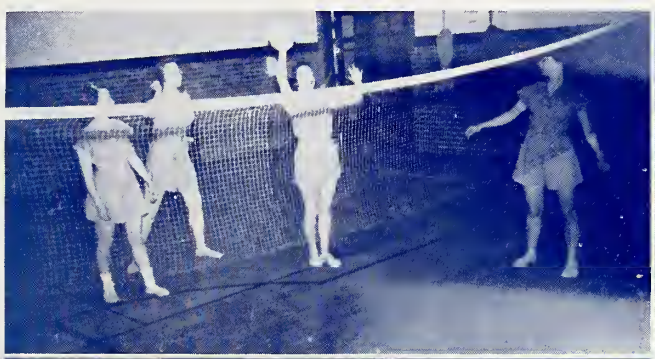
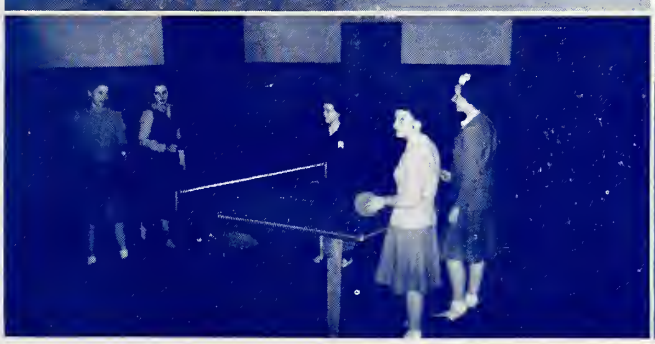
ATHLETICS

This year the purpose of the Athletic Association was to provide a time, a place, and a worthwhile activity for any and all students interested in athletics, as well as to stimulate a desire to participate in those who had not possessed it before. A new scoring basis for classes and for individuals was initiated. With a lusty cheer for each class, the season commenced.

They've got form!
Hey, the ball isn't over there!



Is it a basket?
Let's make it a strike, Barbie.



"This is my country."

Sherman does the family marketing.

PHYSICAL FITNESS

A highlight of the opening game between the freshmen and sophomores was the presence of a "little woman who wasn't there." Miss Gibson, sophomore class sponsor, who could not attend the game, sent a dummy in her place, and be what it might, the dummy brought luck, for the sophs won! The next game saw the "Jolly Juniors" defeat the "Grand Old Seniors," thus a play-off ensued, with the sophomores as victors.

Basketball then took the spotlight. This sport really did loosen up creaky limbs, also increasing interest in the battle for the cup. Both the juniors and seniors won their first two games, becoming contestants in the deciding game. It was certainly a test of agility and prowess!

Swing high; swing low.

Was it ever warm enough for this??

Seniors, with a fast-moving, sharp-shooting forward trio, gained a good lead in the first quarter, were closely trailed in the second, but came through in the third and fourth to win. A round of congratulations followed; another sport was ushered out.

"Play Night," sponsored by the Association and International Club, was thoroughly enjoyed. Folk dancing, active and quiet games, and the inevitable refreshments provided an evening of good old-fashioned fun.

With the advent of Mother Spring, came tennis and baseball. Girls with wind-blown hair and rolled-up shirt sleeves were seen "slugging it out" on the baseball diamond, while others with shorts and gorgeous tans were serving fast balls on the tennis court.

Cheers for class and individual winners closed the season as it had begun.

Give a little bend; exert a little push!

That's not according to Culbertson!

For once we're not serving tea.
Don't take a spill!
Hags are waiting for their nags.

National FESTIVALS

All of the festivals brought us closer to the events which they celebrated. Incarnations of Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Spring, the pageantry of each caught the traditional spirit. Truly they were magic casements permitting us, at least for the moment, to leave the troubled world.

Eyes raised toward heaven give thanks.
Mary croons a lullaby while children pay homage.

THANKSGIVING

"Tramp, tramp, tramp, tramp!" Harken to marching feet of American boys who, on Thanksgiving Day, tramped on foreign shores. Some were fortunate, receiving shipments of food to observe the occasion. Others found courage in memories of Thanksgiving festivities during peaceful years.

We at home pledged our unbounded thanks for a plentiful harvest. Farmers worked long and hard to supply our fighting forces with strength to win.

CHRISTMAS

With the children's eyes upon them, looks of awe and admiration in their sweet young faces, the kings came, garbed in robes of wealth and brilliant hue, bearing gifts for the Christ Child.

Before a thatched hovel, the virgin Mary knelt beside the holy infant. From off-stage came the harmoniously-blended voices of the a cappella choir.

SPRING FESTIVAL CLIMAXES BUSY YEAR AT NATIONAL

As surely as spring comes, so does our Spring Festival. Sap begins to rise in every National girl, coming to its bloom the night of our gala crowning. Each year a May Queen is chosen by vote of the student body. Returns are held secret until the Queen herself, generously attended, ascends her throne.

The theme itself is always a mystery, and it is only by surreptitious peeks or overheard conversations that those not participating can satisfy their curiosities.

Anticipation is evident weeks beforehand in classrooms, halls, cafeteria. Each has an important feeling that she is a cog leading to Festival's success. All of our abilities and talents are equally regarded.

Pin the tail on the donkey—'beg pardon, it's a monkey!
What are you doing, Buckie?

Sing softly, girls.
Watch your cues, please.

Keep your toes pointed.

It sure was a long grind!

D'ya want to chaperone our next dance?

Who's the girl friend, "Mac"?

"'Round and 'round we go."

Are you satisfied, Miss Mount?

A thoroughly responsive audience captured the festive atmosphere of the evening and were swinging and swaying, laughing and exclaiming, as if just a part of the merry-making.

National's night of capers and entertainment was similar to a Mardi Gras celebration. But because it was a product of sense impressions of every girl, which arose through listening to music, the Festival was not stereotyped. Ideas developed concretely into dances, characterization, and mimicry, portraying street life and fantasy at their full culmination in beauty, fun, and vigor.

The opening street scene familiarized us with the ballyhoo of peanut vender and organ grinder, the twittering of young ladies, the swish of taffeta petticoats, and the anxiety of a nurse with her frolicsome charges.

With anticipation, Festival-goers waited for the spectacular display of floats. Slowly they came, moving to the center of the stage; figures came to life. Some danced, others sang. Lovely ladies waltzed 'midst flowing veils, mirrored maids represented a dance of vanity, and mammies crooned Negro melodies.

This is your big moment, Martha.

"HEYDAY" HONORS MARTHA BIXBY

In an atmosphere of light-heartedness and gaiety, Martha Bixby reigned with her court at the "1943 Heyday." A flower fan and garland crown distinguished our gracious and charming queen.

Her attendants were Virginia Rennicke, Marilyn Miller, Valborg Ramsay, Mary Crowell, Nancy Pierson, Roxana Cooper, Mary Carthew, and Marjorie Silverman.

SOCIAL MORALE

ACTIVITY BUILDS MORALE

You were feeling blue 'cause your boy friend was in the Army and you missed him too much. But then came "Hell week," which kept you so busy walking backwards, wearing clothes inside-out, and laughing at the "toothbrush girls," that your morale was raised 100 per cent. You had a Big or Little Sister to whom to pour out your heart, especially at the joint supper-movie party.

When five days passed and you hadn't heard from that certain someone, the faculty tea was welcome. And whose morale wasn't high after the Christmas dinner! It was enough to give anyone lovely dreams. The junior assembly gave us a warm, sentimental feeling, while those dignified seniors presented a clever saga. We were proud that our College was being constructive in destructive times.

Your chance'll come next year!

There's always plenty of food at Big-Little Sister doings.

The faculty don't want "tea served in the lounge" at 4 P.M.!

"Hoot Nanny" blew our morale into the clouds. Spirits were high and hearts were light as we laughed 'till our sides split.

And so it was, every time we were "down in the dumps," something happened to help us to forget our troubles temporarily. If it wasn't an assembly program, it was a dance; some vital thing to which we could lend our talents, become an enraptured audience, or pin our faith.

We began to realize that these activities were essential for maintenance of high spirits and sane minds while chaos reigned about us. From the events of 1943, we learned the value of morale building in civilian as well as in army life. We were glad for the buoyancy of spirit, for the intrepid nature which is the birthright of every American.

Was it worth the effort—Sept. 16?

AT NATIONAL'S PARTIES

Patriotic to the nth degree, National's socialites this year sported "new-two-seasons-ago" dance dresses, giving a lift to their spirits instead by means of war-stamp corsages or bright accessories.

Even standing on street corners in sub-zero weather, in hopes of snagging a superannuated taxi, failed to daunt party-goers. Of course the spring prom was the one that caused our romantic hearts to soar!

Uniforms and sparkling braid and the choice of nearby hotels to facilitate transportation were the only evident intimations of war. And there were a lucky few whose dates had a bit of their A card gasoline ration remaining!

The American Red Cross

With the Colors—Everywhere

A WOUNDED SAILOR on a storm-tossed destroyer on the North Atlantic is given a transfusion of life-saving plasma —processed from blood collected by the Red Cross from volunteer donors.

A soldier's mother is desperately ill and calling for her son, stationed on the other side of the continent—the Red Cross helps him obtain a furlough and speeds him to his mother's bedside.

A marine, wounded in action and discharged as physically unfit for duty, has to learn a new trade—the Red Cross helps arrange it and finds him a job.

A family longs for word from an only son, a prisoner of war in a foreign land—the Red Cross brings them a message from him through its international communications network.

Everywhere, throughout the world, wherever American fighting men are on duty, the Red Cross is at their side. With combat units on the battle fronts, at outposts in the seven seas, in camps and stations at home, Red Cross men and women are serving with the colors.

Chapters and branches of the Red Cross in every city, village and hamlet in the United States serve on the home front, making comfort items for the men in service and aiding their families when in distress. Red Cross workers serve in hospitals to help speed the convalescence of wounded men.

Two and a quarter million Americans are volunteer workers of the Red Cross, backed by 28 million men, women and children whose dollars make its work possible. It is your Red Cross—your dollars and good wishes keep it on the job.
